

Fourth, for courses of lectures to be given from time to time in the hall of said library.

The said classes of instruction and lectures shall be for the free use and benefit of the inhabitants of Dennis, under such reasonable regulations as from time to time may be made by the trustees.

SECTION 4. The inhabitants of said Quivet Neck, including as such all persons of and above the age of twenty-one years, male and female, who have resided in that part of Dennis known as Quivet Neck for the period of one year before the time of the holding of the meetings hereinafter provided for, may elect by ballot annually a committee of five, who shall not be any of said trustees or their successors, and who shall be such inhabitants of Quivet Neck, the duties of which committee shall be to advise with the trustees as to the administration of the said trust. Such meetings of the inhabitants shall be held annually upon Quivet Neck in the month of May, at such time and place as shall be determined by the trustees, and may be adjourned from time to time by vote of the voters present thereat. The meetings shall be notified by the trustees by notice posted in more than one public place upon said Quivet Neck, including the outer door of said library building, at least seven days before the time of holding the meeting. The trustees shall determine the right to vote of any person claiming that right in said meeting; and one of the trustees, selected by themselves, shall preside at all such meetings. Said meetings shall be further organized by the election of a clerk, who shall be sworn, and whose duty it shall be to keep and preserve a record of the proceedings of the meetings. The trustees shall submit to said meetings a detailed report of their receipts and expenditures for the year next preceding. The advisory committee of five so chosen by said annual meetings shall advise with the trustees concerning the administration of the trust. They may fix the proportion of the income of the trust which shall be expended respectively for the second, third and fourth objects hereinbefore named; they may select the books to be purchased for said library; and may determine upon the courses of instruction and of lectures which shall be given in said hall.

Advisory committee, election, duties, etc.

Meetings, etc.